

APPLYING FOR FOOD & NUTRITIONAL SERVICES (FNS)

INFORMATION ON HOW TO APPLY TO FNS AS A DUKE STUDENT

Food and Nutrition Services is a federal food assistance program that provides low-income individuals & families the food they need for a nutritionally adequate diet. Benefits are issued via Electronic Benefit Transfer cards (EBT cards).

Students must meet the eligibility requirements AND an exemption listed on the other side of this sheet.

If you are uncertain of your eligibility apply anyway, DSS workers will help and work with you.

A household is constituted as people who purchase and prepare food together. If you are in a residence hall or apartment, or live alone, you still count as a household; single individuals can constitute a household.

You may be eligible for Food and Nutrition Services if your total income falls below the appropriate gross income limits for your household size. DSS workers determine which income limit applies to your household.

One person household month income limit:
$2,148

Two person household month income limit:
$2,904
